MASSACRE DENIED!

Probability That There Has Been None at Jackson Hole.

TWO DISPATCHES THAT WOULD INDICATE THAT THE REPORTED MASSACRE IS ONLY RUMOR.

VALKYRIE OFF FOR N. Y.

BIG FIRE IN ROCKVILLE, CT

School Principal Suicides!

Black and White G. A. R.

PROBABLY NO MASSACRE.

Very Good Evidence That All Has Been Quiet at Jackson Hole.

[Special Dispatch to the Transcript.]

WASHINGTON, July 27.—It is now extremely doubtful whether there is any foundation for the reported Indian massacre at Jackson's Hole sent out by all the morning papers. The dispatch was in substance this: "The wildest excitement was created in Market Lake this Friday afternoon by the arrival of William Ross, a wealthy merchant, from St. Anthony, who reported that every man, woman and child in the Jackson's Hole country had been killed by the Bannocks after a hard fight."

What makes the reported massacre seem extremely improbable is the fact that Indian Commissioner Browning of the Indian bureau received a dispatch this morning from Agent Teter dated Idaho Fall, Idaho, saying, saying: "I have joined General Coppinger enroute to Jackson's Hole. The Indian police who have returned from Jackson's Hole state that the Indians there will not resist United States troops."

This telegram was received at 5.21 this morning, being sent by Agent Teter about 2 o'clock probably. This makes this dispatch later than the dispatch sent out to the press announcing news of the massacre, and yet no mention is made of any such occurrence. If it has happened, Agent Teter, who is on the scene and most deeply interested evidently is in ignorance of it.

Commissioner Browning says that he believes the report is unfounded and that the couriers whose stories formed the basis of the accepted rumors have very likely deceived the officials.

Further Confirmation of No Massacre Taking Place.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, July 27.—The reported massacre at Jackson Hole is denied by a despatch from Market Lake sent at 1 o'clock this morning. It says: "Pay no attention to wild rumors about the Indian troubles. All is quiet at Jackson Hole."

Latest Advices.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Up to 1 o'clock the war department has received no official information regarding the Bannock Indian trouble. The dispatch received this morning from Salt Lake stating that all was quiet at Jackson's Hole and that there had been no massacre was the only news that reached the department, and its text gave great satisfaction to Lieut. General G. F. Schofield.

BIG CONNECTICUT FIRE.

Rockville Has a Blaze This Morning That Spoiled $100,000 in Property.

[Special Dispatch to the Transcript.]

ROCKVILLE, Conn., July 27.—W. F. Orcutt's block and an adjoining three story wooden block on Main street in the centre of the business part of the city, and containing seven of the principal stores was completely destroyed by fire early this morning. The total loss is $100,000 and the insurance is about $60,000.

SCHOOL PRINCIPAL SUICIDES.

Highly Respected Citizen of Lowell Drowns Himself.

[Special Dispatch to the Transcript.]

LOWELL, Mass., Samuel Tucker aged fifty-five years, principal of Home school in Billerica for twenty-seven years, committed suicide last night by drowning in the Concord river. Despondency over financial matters caused the act. He is survived by a wife and two children. He was a highly respected citizen of the town.

ALL VETERANS ALIKE.

Blacks and Whites to be Treated Alike at Louisville G. A. R. Encampment.

[Special dispatch to the Transcript.]

MONTICELLO, Ill., July 27.—Regarding the report that colored members of the Grand Army of the Republic would not be admitted to quarters or allowed to march in the grand parade at the national encampment at Louisville, a letter has been received from T. H. Shirley, president of the citizens' executive committee of Louisville, which states that colored posts will be quartered in school houses reserved especially for them, and in posts containing black members, the former may be quartered in the same rooms with the white members, if it is so desired. All veterans will receive equal treatment.

VALKYRIE OFF FOR AMERICA.

[Special Dispatch to The Transcript.]

GOUROCK, July 27.—America will soon be able to see the Valkyrie. The yacht sailed for New York at 2.40 this afternoon.

BOUND, GAGGED AND ROBBED.

A Villainous Burglary Committed in Providence Last Night.

[Special Dispatch to the Transcript.]

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 28.—George H. Wood, a member of the firm of Wood, Bicknall & Potter, late last night was attacked by two burglars in his home, who bound and gagged him and then beat him into insensibility. They ransacked his house from top to bottom. The burglars had secured silverware and jewelry generally valued at $1600 to $1800, but fearing that they were being watched by officers outside the house, they threw the stolen property over the high gate as they left the premises and fled. The property was later discovered by Mr. Wood.

STEAMSHIP LINE TO SELL.

LONDON, July 27.—The National Steamship company is negotiating for the sale of its fleet and business to the Wilson line.

THREE BEARS IN A TREE.

Three Half Grown Cubs Treed Near the Upper Waters of Broad Brook.

Charles Vanhorn and Albert Montgomery, while fishing on Broad Brook yesterday met keen excitement at what is known as the "forks," which is on the Vermont side. They suddenly came upon three half-grown cubs, and after a little manoeuvering succeeded in treeing them.

One of them remained on the scene while the others went in quest of a man with a gun. Through good fortune the old mother bear did not "show up," and Montgomery, who had gone in search of aid, returned with Lemuel Morgan, who is stationed at Broad Brook reservoir. Morgan brought a gun with him and the cubs were shot.

The day's fishing was felt to be successful by the parties interested, for, besides the bounty which the state of Vermont pays for each bear killed within the limits of her territory, profit will be reaped from the hides and carcasses of the animals. It seems as though bears were uncommonly numerous in this section.

A Child Lost.

Yesterday afternoon a little child from Summer street was found in the depot crying to go home. No one knew who she was or where she lived and she couldn't tell herself, so she was obliged to remain there until her parents found her later.

The Magnan Case.

The Magnan liquor case came up for decision this morning at 9 o'clock. Judge Bixby said that a druggist has the right to keep pure alcohol for medicinal and mechanical purposes, and cited other points which he said conflicted, but it was shown that the liquors were for sale in one way and another, and Magnan was found guilty of keeping with intent to sell. The case was different from others, inasmuch as no sale had been proven. Judge Bixby considered this and fined the defendant $50.

A quaker meeting will be held at the old meeting house tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.

CONDUIT BUILDING.

A Short Explanation of How the Work Is Being Carried Out.

THEIR VERY LARGE CAPACITY.

The Method of Drawing in the Cables. What the Cables Are. How Subscribers Will be Accommodated. Pittsfield Behind.

Since Main street in the day time has come to look like the camping ground of some invading army which puts great faith in earth works, and at night looks like a large section of a railroad yard, there has been much interest taken in the work that has caused these unusual appearances. Almost everyone knows that the excavating is for conduits for the telephone wires and is being done by men employed by the New England Telephone and Telegraph company, but the knowledge goes little farther.

The depth to which the conduits are being laid need not be mentioned as that is apparent to all, but the conduits themselves, the manner of stringing the cables in them and just how they will serve when in practice are things of interest, clearly shown to be by the numerous questions daily put to the busy men.

As to the conduits: They are of pine prepared with creosote, four and one half inches square with a three-inch bore. They are made in sections of different lengths and connect just the way the old-fashioned needle case received its cover. The wood is prepared by the chemical to keep it from decomposing or being attacked by any insect. It is kept in the solution under very high pressure until the liquid has penetrated to the innermost fibre. This is the best known method of preserving wood.

These conduits, so prepared, are laid at a uniform depth on a planked bed on the prepared bottom of the trench dug to receive them. Stakes are placed at short distances to hold them closely together. When they are in position, they are covered with plank, earth is placed in along the sides and rammed hard the way railroad men bind a tie. The earth then that was taken out of the trench is filled in much in the same position it was before it was disturbed, the upper layer still on top. It is rammed down hard and the surface is made wet and pounded with as much care as is taken in the making of a macadam road. The conduits are laid to the length of 350 feet if street accommodations or other conditions do not interfere to cause shorter length. At the ends of each length of conduits brick manholes are built. These manholes will be protected by heavy iron covers some three feet in diameter. The manholes are the places from which branches of the cables are taken to accommodate the subscribers in near-by buildings.

The drawing in of the cables will be by far the most interesting operation in the whole conduit building that the public will have the pleasure to observe. The cables come mounted on reels that can be placed on a stand so that they may revolve readily. The reel is placed at the manhole and a man descends. He pushes an eight-foot length of iron pipe into the end of the conduit. He screws on to the end of that length another such length and pushes the addition into the conduit also. This adding is kept up until the pipe reaches the whole length of the conduit. When it reaches from end to end a rope is attacked to the last section of pipe inserted, and a man begins in the manhole at the other end to draw out the pipe, unscrewing it section by section. When the pipe is out a rope is in instead. One end of the rope is fastened to the cable on the reel and the other is fastened to a windlass operated by a horse. Winding begins and the cable is carefully pulled into the conduit. When each conduit section is filled with cables connections are made and the work is completed.

The conduits will be laid on Main, Holden and Bank streets, and on Summer street from State to Ashland street. On Main street, for part of the distance, twelve conduits will be laid. Sixteen will be laid on Holden street and the other streets will be given whatever will be found necessary. One cable will be laid in each conduit. An idea of the service that the system will give can be obtained from the capacity of the Holden street conduits. An 150 pair cable is the largest that one of these conduits will admit. An 150 pair cable means a cable having 300 insulated wires. Sixteen times 300 would give 4,800, the number of single wires that the Holden street conduit may contain. That would mean that 4,800 subscribers, using entire metallic circuits, could talk with each other through that conduit at one time, or, that using the ground system, as many as 9,800 transmitters and 9,800 receivers could be in use at the same moment. The allowance made in this conduit for probable increase in subscribers can be readily seen by a glance at the list of subscribers on the telephone card in any place where the telephone is in use.

The cables are lead-inclosed, paper-covered, copper wire cables. The branches to supply the subscribers in a block or any street section will be taken from the manhole nearest, through under the side-walk and into the cellars, or to the rear of the buildings. The branch cables will then be conducted up the walls of the buildings and divided and sub-divided to place the wires wherever needed. The wires are never at any point exposed in the whole system. The ramification can be so well done that the existence of the wires in or on a building would not be detected unless by close inspection. This branching will be done by Manager Stedman. It is a difficult matter and one requiring good judgement and a knowledge of the town so that increase may be allowed for. The present subscribers and those intending to become subscribers can rest assured their convenience will be deeply considered. The perfection of service Mr. Stedman has maintained in the past no doubt will be given in the future, and if a better is offered by the new system it will be given.

The reasons for putting the wires underground are many. One is that the unsightly poles and troublesome overhead wires will be to a great degree done away with. Another is that there will be less liability to damage to the system by the elements and better service is possible. Others which are obvious need not be enumerated. The work is being done rapidly under the direction of competent men, spoken of before in this paper. It is being done with care, and streets will not suffer from it. A watchman guards at night. Just how rapid the work is progressing is shown in the fact that 1135 feet of conduit were laid the first day. In conduits, as in most other things, North Adams is ahead of Pittsfield, which would not give permission for the laying of them, satisfied to put up with the antiquated overhead wire system.

It may be mentioned that in these conduits one is reserved for the use of the city for fire alarm and police alarm purposes. The police alarm is not yet a fact, but we are fast becoming a city. The patrol wagon may soon ring and rumble as well as the ambulance.

In the District Court.

Quite a number of boys were in court this morning to await judgement by State Agent Morton. Henry StJohn's, Joseph Rougeau, Charles Conlon, Patrick Burns, Robert Heyndman, Charles Carey, Bliss Paradise and boys names whose names are Baccary, Mason and Wilcox were each fined $2 for stealing apples from Peter Post. Duro Mazzanotle for breaking glass had his case continued until Monday. The case against Leonard Benton for taking M. E. Couch's bicycle was continued until August 31. Alfred St Johns and Michael Andrew were fined $2 each for stealing apples. Lucy Rider, charged with being a stubborn child was discharged. Henry Supernaut, the boy who took O. A. Archer's horse and Jefferson's Davis' horse, was discharged. Eight boys were charged with stealing sewing machine crates and were discharged.

Samuel B. Bennet, charged with non support of wife and child, had his case continued until August 1. E. H. Buck, Mark Todd end John Fretenburg were each fined $5 for drunkenness. James Egan and Henry McCarty were placed on three months probation and the later was fined $2.08.

Mrs. Sebaette Stevens Rogers.

Mrs. Sebaette Stevens Rogers, wife of Edwin Rogers of this town, died at Heron Island, Me., Thursday evening, July 25. On July 11, Mrs. Rogers had the great misfortune to fall down a stairway in the Madockawando house, the summer home and hotel of Mr. and Mrs. Rogers, and sustained a severe fracture of the hip. At first the accident was not looked upon as one endangering the life of the sufferer. But she gradually failed, her age precluding the possibility of the recuperative powers necessary to even recover from the shock of the accident, not to speak of the vigor necessary to make the injured hip sound and strong again. Anxious and sorrowing friends at her bedside, all unable in any way to delay the approaching end, watched the patient sufferer gradually weaken day by day till the last of life came Thursday evening just a fortnight after the fatal fall.

Mrs. Rogers was born August 1, 1820, in Swanzey, N. H., and was lacking but a few days of seventyty-five years at the time of her death. Her early days were spent in Keene, N. H., and Northampton. In the latter place she took part in the reception given to Lafayette and though only a little over three years old at the time remembered being one of the children who gave him flowers

Mrs. Rogers first made her home in North Adams in 1843. It was the next year, November 27, 1844, that she married Edwin Rogers of this town. The marriage ceremony was performed in the old brick block adjoining the Congregational church by Rev. Dr. Robert Crawford of Clinton, Conn., who was for ten years pastor of the North Adams Congregational church. This was the beginning of a remarkably long and happy married life, as was shown at the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Rogers celebrated last November, when the couple whose heads were gray but whose hearts were still young received in the Congregational church such a host of friends and their congratulations as is seldom the good fortune of any.

It was Mrs. Rogers who had a prominent part in the formation of the Martha Washington society shortly after her coming to this town. In this work she was associated with Mrs. J. N. Chapin, Mrs. Harvey Arnold and Mrs. Steven M. Whipple. She was the society's secretary for years.

Mrs. Rogers' death, in the words of a dispatch from a friend announcing the sad news, brought "the close of a long and beautiful life." And such her life was indeed. She was not a woman who courted public attention or cared to make her good works conspicuous. But her life was one long record of duty done and of kind and charitable acts performed. Her's was a Christian life and one in which her religion and her church relations were allowed to play an uplifting and ennobling part for more than half a century. It was of such as she had been, that the words of the Proverbs were written: "A woman that feareth the Lord she shall be praised. Give her of the fruit of her hands; and let her own words words praise her in the gates."

Her death has brought sorrow and a sense of loss to a very large circle of friends in this community and many cherished acquaintances outside of it. It is with the common sentiment that a good and noble woman has gone that these friends take earthly farewell of her.

Mrs. Rogers leaves besides her husband a nephew, George E. Rogers of Greenfield. The funeral took place today and the burial will be at Northampton.

A Secret Bestowed.

Michael O'Dea, tailor, whose place of business is in Gatslick's block, received from Richard Hall a short time before his death the secret of compounding the clothes cleaning preparation that made him so popular in his speciality. Mr. O'Dea has made up some of the preparation from the recipe given him and finds that its work is far superior to that of any preparation generally known to the trade. Mr. O'Dea then is prepared to give the public the result of Mr. Hall's experience. He is at present negotiating for the purchase of Mr. Hall's tools and for renting the place occupied by Mr. Hall so that he will be well fitted to use the valuable secret so generously given him.

Rev. F. D. Penney will leave town Monday to join his family at Auburn, N. Y., and will be away on vacation till August 22. Letters or other communications will reach him if directed to Auburn.

A BAD BED ROOM.

An Insane Pauper at Cheshire Sleeps in a Dingy Basement.

THE STATE AGENT'S DISCOVERY.

But Old Humphrey Leary Finds No Fault.—Agent Purdy Will Report and Say the Place is as Bad as a Cellar.

An incident showing the mistake there is in towns allowing their paupers to be cared for by private individuals was found at Cheshire yesterday by Agent H. A. Purdy from the office of Charles E. Woodbury, inspector for the state board of lunacy and charity. It is Mr. Purdy's duty to visit all town farms and all places where town or state paupers are kept.

The objects of these visits is principally to find if any children or lunatics are being cared for at these places and to examine into and report regarding their condition. It may be here said before mention of conditions elsewhere is made that Mr. Purdy found the North Adams town farm in good condition and says it is a very good institution. Mr. Purdy does not talk about his duties though he receives a questioner very cordially.

The case in question at Cheshire is that of Humphrey Leary, an old man sixty years of age. Mr. Leary has seen better days, suffered losses through relatives, it is said, and now is insane. He is harmless and has wandered all over Cheshire at times, housing himself wherever he could, not objecting to sleep in a comfortable barn. Perhaps it is this diseased though contented condition of mind that makes him satisfied with the quarters he now occupies in James Coughlin's house. There are four other paupers at Mr. Coughlin's place, but old Mr. Leary seems not to have the choice of apartments. The house is by no means a palace. It is one of the many common, little, wooden cottages that meet the view of the visitor who gets off at Cheshire depot. The basement of this house, if that part of the building which the modern structure stands upon may be called basement, has two rooms. The front one is the brightest and appears as if it is used for sitting and dining room. The rear room is dark and dingy and receives its only illumination from a small window which scarcely shows in the darkness. This is poor old Leary's sleeping apartment and he is content with it, because perhaps he is not sensible of his surroundings. The room is not a fit place for a sleeping room for any human being, and should not be the apartment of any town ward. The bed was found in poor condition. The mattress is old and was not scrupulously clean.

Mr. Purdy is of the opinion that the room is not a proper sleeping room. He says it is little better than a cellar and he will so report to his department. His department may or may not take any steps in the matter. All it will do at first anyway will be to call the attention of the overseers of the poor of Cheshire to the conditions reported by the agent and then the overseers will remedy the matter. The agent does not think there is any desire to illtreat old Mr. Leary. The people who are taking care of him are perhaps doing the best they can in their limited circumstances.

THE A, B, C's OF MONEY.

No question so perplexes and appals the average student as does the money question. Many men well informed on most topics of current interest and general political matters, completely surrender to the money question and confess their inability to grapple with it. Undoubtedly they have tried to master so many theories of finance and have run statistics so variously juggled that they have given up the solution of the money problem as insolvable and past finding out. It remains the economic sphinx and the everlasting stumbling block.

Prof. Perry of Williams college in his work on political economy begins his discussion of money with the assurance that it is comparatively easy of understanding. But this ease will only come of making sure of some few first principles, always to be held and by which every money theory or argument should be tested. Like the science of mathematics, the science of money must and does rest on axioms and principles that stand to reason at first glance. These must be learned and securely held if any person means to understand the money problem in any thing like a satisfactory degree.

To those who have followed the rather wearisome Horr-Harvey debate now going on in Chicago, it must have been evident that these men were doing little more than trying to settle first principles, or speaking more correctly, to determine whether or not the first principles of money and currency had been violated.

It may be stated upon the authority of all economic writers that money as money must perform three functions, and if it fails in any of the three particulars, just so far it fails of being money. Money should be: (1) a medium of exchange; (2) a standard of values by which other things may be valued; (3) and a standard of deferred payments, by which is meant a stable thing of value that will not change before long-time debts may be due or when future contracts are to be fulfilled. Now, let everyone ask himself concerning every money proposition or argument questions that determine whether the three money conditions and fundamentals above mentioned are violated or sustained, and the inquirer may then be in a fair way to determine the question involved. About silver and the proposition to coin it or demonetize it, let the question be asked whether it will result in money that people are perfectly willing to accept in all exchange; will it be a money so stable that everything else can be measured by it, will it be money that will not so fluctuate as to make a debt or obligation less or more at a future time when the obligation must be met.

These questions with the principles upon which they should be answered may be called the A, B, C's of money.

THE WAR FOR LIBERTY IN CUBA.

The latest news from the Cuban war is a despatch reading thus. "Reports are confirmed of Martinez Campos' defeat at the battle of Valenzuela. Of the 1800 Spanish troops that went into battle, only 300 escaped to Bayamo, where they are surrounded by 6000 Cubans under Maceo, Masso, Quintin, Bandera and Goulet. The insurgents' loss in this battle was 280 killed and wounded."

It is not difficult to see that matters are growing exceedingly serious for Spain in the greatest of her island possessions. The insurgent army is much larger, better equipped and better drilled than any Cuban patriot army ever was before. Moreover, the Cuban patriots have cavalry, something that was lacking to them in all previous attempts to throw off the Spanish rule.

The fact that the insurgent forces did not hesitate to attack Captain-General and Field Marshal Campos, who was leading a detachment of the Spanish army, in the south-east portion of the island, shows how bold and sanguine the leaders have become. The Spanish forces have become so dismayed by the loss of General Santocildes that Marshal Campos could only retrieve the day at Valenzuela and rally his forces by leading the column in person. Reports say that he has been wounded. He is the great soldier in the Spanish army, and his disablement at the present time would seriously prejudice the cause of the mother country.

Another great factor in this contest is the disease that attacks the foreign army. Yellow fever and malarial disorders are everywhere helping to demoralize the Spanish forces. This fact is known and taken advantage of by the Cuban generals.

It hardly seems possible for the insurgents to dethrone the Spanish power in the island, but it is certain that power is tottering on its foundation more seriously than ever before. Were it not for the Spanish navy, the insurgents would have a good show.

It is interesting to know how one of the cruelest and most heartless demons ever clothed in human form began his bloody career. Herman Mudgett or H. H. Holmes, whichever may be his right name, began his evil deeds while a medical student at Ann Arbor, where his friend, another student, at his suggestion, had his life insured for $12,000. They obtained a body, arranged to have it identified as that of the man insured, and were paid the life insurance money. The success of this fraud seems to have started Mudgett upon his career of crime, and he carried on similar operations in various parts of the country under different names, until he is now accused of half a dozen murders committed to obtain possession of the victim's property.

Senator Blackburn is likely to be returned to the United States senate from Kentucky in spite of his free silver delusion. There are 100 legislative and 38 senate districts, and of these 13 senate and and 76 representative candidates have been heard from. Five of the senate candidates and eighteen representatives declare for Blackburn, against two senators and three representatives for Buckner and six representatives for McCreary. There is a majority of sound money candidates, many of whom are supporting Blackburn. By far the greater portion refuse to state their leaning in either the senate or money fight.

The cruiser New York, flagship of the United States squadron sent to Kiel to participate in the ceremonies attending the opening of the new German canal, arrived in New York Thursday. It is a matter of pleasure to Americans in general that the squadron was the center of attraction and the object of the curious at the great naval parade in German waters. More than this the Emperor William and his brother as well as many German naval architects paid the New York the high compliment of repeated visits.

If anyone doubts the intense interest that is to be taken in the coming international races, let him read the daily papers whenever the yacht Defender has come within hailing distance of a reporter or has been put in dry dock where the newspaper artist can get an under, upper or broadside view of the boat. One page of all the New York and Boston dailies then is sure not to contain much else than yacht gossip, guesses, opinions and cuts of the marvelous new boat.

And now the New York Sun tells a story of how a man about to be strung up to a tree for the Texas killing habit saved his life by omitting any reference in an extemporaneous ante-death speech of the Wilson bill or silver question. He was allowed to "git out" and spread the no-silver-no-tariff-in-speech mania.

Millionaires are not altogether useless to the glory of their country. If it were not for Mr. Gould and Mr. Iselin who would have furnished funds to build a ship to keep the cup at home to beat the Englishmen?

WHITTIER'S COURAGE.

He Hazarded Life and Popularity In the Cause of Abolition.

Before Whittier was 30 he had made up his mind that it was his duty to do what he could for the relief of the unfortunate negroes who were held in bondage in the south. In 1833 he wrote a pamphlet called "Justice and Expediency," in which he considered the whole question of slavery and declared that it should cease forever. Three years later he became secretary of the Antislavery society. In 1838 he went to Philadelphia to edit the Pennsylvania Freeman, and so boldly did he advocate the right of the negro to own himself that the printing office was sacked by a mob and burned. Then, as more than once afterward for the same cause, Whittier was in danger for his life.

Whittier showed physical courage in facing the ruffians who wished to prevent free speech, but he had revealed the higher moral courage in casting in his lot with the little band of abolitionists. Up to this time he had looked forward to holding public office, as well he might, when many another journalist was stepping from the newspaper desk into public life. When he became one of the small band who denounced slavery, he gave up all chance of office. He also had literary ambition, but so strong was the power of the slave owners then, and so intolerant were they, that most editors and publishers were sorely intimidated and declined to print not only any attack on slavery, but even the other writings of an author who was known as an abolitionist. Thus Whittier, in identifying himself with the antislavery movement, thought that he was giving up his literary future also. He made his decision promptly, and he never regretted it. Indeed in later life he said to a boy of 15 to whom he was giving counsel, "My lad, if thou wouldst win success, join thyself to some unpopular but noble cause."—Professor Brander Matthews in St. Nicholas.

OVERWEIGHT LUGGAGE.

He Didn't Dispute the Weight, but Refused to Pay For It.

A young man was standing beside some luggage waiting for a train when a porter came up to him and said:

"Sir, that luggage is overweight."

"Who says it is?" asked the man, who stammered badly.

"Well, I think it is," answered the porter, "but we will weigh it."

During the conversation a crowd had collected round them, and another porter came up and asked what was the matter. The man stammered out:

"F-first he says it is overweight, then he—says he th-thinks it is overweight, and th-then he says he will weigh it."

The porters then took hold of the luggage and carried it off to the office and weighed it.

"It is overweight, and you have got 1 shilling ninepence to pay," said porter No. 1.

"Sh-shan't pay it," the man said.

"Well, if you won't pay it, we shall fetch the station master," said the porter.

"Fetch wh-who you like; sh-shan't pay it," again stammered the man.

The station master was duly fetched, and on arriving asked what the bother was about, when the man again said:

"F-first he says it is overweight, and then he weighs it and says it is overweight, and I have 1 shilling ninepence to pay. Sh-shan't pay."

"Well," said the station master in a rage, "why won't you pay?"

"Because it is not my luggage," answered the man and walked off.—Rookdale News.

Professor Kadish, an old and experienced master in the art, believes swimming to be a sure cure for rheumatism and maintains that continued natatorial practice will prevent all pulmonary troubles. A tendency toward consumption, he claims, will be overcome, muscles will be developed, chest broadened and lung power greatly improved. Especially is it said to be good for the brain. Floating with the back of the head submerged allows the water to act upon the brain in such a way as to dispel all gloomy forebodings and drive away care and suffering.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Evidently Feminine.

"How do you know that creature who passed here on a wheel was a woman and not a man?"

"Because her costume looked considerably more like a man's than those most of the men are wearing."—Chicago Record.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

—After tomorrow there will be no regular services at the Universalist church till September 1.

—A large company of people went to Blackinton last night in two of Flagg's four-horse teams.

—Dorothy Read, the young young child of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hubbell of Chicago, was baptized at St. John's church last Sunday.

—Pittsfield will furnish three students for the Williams freshman class in the fall. They are John Barker, Walter Kellog and Joel Hathaway.

—East Lynne pleased a fair house at the Columbia last evening it being well played. Tonight, "Was Marriage a Failure" will be produced, a high-class comedy of merit.

—Curbing has been distributed between the French church and the corner of East Main and Pleasant streets, which denotes that the walk is to be relaid, an improvement that is certainly needed.

—Church's barber shop has been moved from 77 Holden street to the block located at the corner of River and Brooklyn streets. Mr. Church's conveniences are greater at this new stand and there he will be pleased to meet all his old customers. See Town Talk.

—A. W. Louis, E. N. Sampson and L. W. Farr, state surveyors, have arrived to survey and lay out the Williamstown portion of the state road. They arrived in town, stopped for the night at the Richmond house and then went over to Williamstown.

—J. H. Flagg finished his haying Thursday. He mows about thirty-two acres and this year he cut 108 loads, which is seven more than he cut a year ago and nineteen more than the crop of 1893. The quality is excellent. Mr. Flagg is constantly improving his meadow and it is in a condition to compare favorably with any in these parts.

—Rev. J. C. Tebbetts has received a letter from Mrs. Hiram Sibley of Rochester, N. Y., stating that her young granddaughter, Margaret, has been sick and that she is now with her father, Hiram W. Sibley, on board a yacht on the lake for the benefit of her health.

—Clapp's band will go to Adams tonight and play at the St. Charles lawn fete. There will be a large attendance and it is probable a good number from from this town will attend. A sizeable delegation went last night and they report the fete a very pleasant affair.

—It is learned through the Rochester, N. Y., newspapers that Mrs. Perkins of that city, a granddaughter of Mrs. Hiram Sibley, has presented to the Homœpathic hospital of Rochester two very fine ambulances, one for patients with contagious diseases and one for other patients, or sick persons to be moved from one house to another. The papers describe the ambulances as having every convenience and being most complete in all respects.

—A few went from this town to Cheshire last night to attend the minstrel show given two evenings by the young people of that town and were well pleased with the performance, which they pronounce the best they ever saw given by amateurs. The "jag train" was a great hit and the whole performance was far above the average of amateur work in point of excellence.

—Charles A. Pike's new house on Rock street is nearly finished. It is a well built and a very pleasing house of eight rooms and was planned and built by Mr. Pike's father, C. Nathan Pike. The interior finish is of whitewood and yellow pine, and the floors down stairs have quarted oak borders. The rooms are conveniently arranged and the views from the windows are attractive. The house is lighted by electricity and heated by steam, and is in every way a model home. It will be ready to occupy in about two weeks.

—A big black dog was seen trotting through East Quincy and Wall streets this morning with a large piece of meat in his mouth. The paper in which it was wrapped when it left the market dropped off, but the dog hung to the meat and seemed to have no objection to its coming in direct contact with his mouth. It is not known whether he was sent home with the meat or had been playing thief. It was a fine chunk of beef and either the dog had a feast or some one will eat meat for dinner that has been christened with dog saliva.

THE LISTENER.

Senator Turpie speaks, writes and reads seven languages.

Mr. Gladstone once said, "I hate getting up in the morning, and hate it the same every morning."

Ex-Chief of Police Byrnes of New York says that he has declined a proffer of $15,000 per annum by a foreign government that requires his services.

George Q. Cannon, the Mormon elder, was formerly a missionary in Hawaii and has translated Joseph Smith's Bible into the Hawaiian language.

Having fostered the white winged dove of peace between China and Japan to maturity, the Hon. John W. has returned home rich in honor and pocket.

Dr. F. E. Clark, founder of the Christian Endeavor, is said to dislike very much the name "Father Clark," as it gives the impression of an old man, whereas he is only 44.

The late Lord Alcester of the British navy was noted for the scrupulous care and neatness with which he dressed. In later years he was known as "the ocean swell."

Lee Song has caught on to civilization in splendid shape. This enlightened Chinaman, who lives at Lawrence, Kan., has sued a pretty American girl for breach of promise.

For a wager of $50 Harry A. Harmon dived backward off a high building into the Chicago river, turning a somersault as he fell. He struck the water with his feet and was uninjured.

Baron Edmond Rothschild has bought for $10,000 and presented to the Louvre the Boscoreale treasure, consisting of silver articles found at Pompeii, which the Boston museum was trying to purchase.

John D. Rockefeller has the amiable eccentricity of giving bicycles to his friends. Last year he gave 22 wheels to his acquaintances and this year has already presented 16 to those of his friends who, in his opinion, need outdoor exercise.

Huxley's face was thin and his complexion so dark as to be almost swarthy. When he shaved off his mustache and beard, the skin was quite blue black. His hair was worn long. On the platform he was a remarkably self possessed man.

A Boston writer who knows John L. Sullivan very well says that the ex-champion does not use the Bowery patois so generally credited to him; that he is a ready talker on all current topics and at home in the use of polysyllabic words.

Mr. Walter H. Page has resigned the editorship of The Forum. Mr. Page has been in the service of this review for more than seven years and has had exclusive editorial control for more than four years. It was he who reduced the price of The Forum to 25 cents.

Captain Henry Bundy, now 67, is one of the most interesting characters on the great lakes. He is known as the "sailor evangelist" and for 20 years has been doing missionary work among the lake mariners. He distributes tracts, sells Bibles, and when a family is unable to purchase a Bible he presents it with one.

The president's family now consists of three daughters—Ruth, born at the White House; Esther, born in New York city, and the third at Gray Gables on July 7.—Rochester Union.

Mr. Cleveland is again to be congratulated. Girls are much more valuable than boys, especially at this time, when the new woman is taking possession of the earth.—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

The Clevelands have their third daughter. Unless woman suffrage comes along bringing eligibility to office in its train there is no future presidential possibility in the Cleveland family as thus far constituted.—Elmira Advertiser.

President and Mrs. Cleveland rejoice in a new baby. It is a girl. If this is the third term the New York Sun has been raising such a clamor about, it may as well subside. The country approves of it, but would have preferred a boy.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

Mrs. O'Leary is dead. But what has become of the cow?—Grand Rapids Democrat.

One of Chicago's prize packages is no more—Mrs. Catherine O'Leary, who owned the cow that kicked over the lamp that set fire to Chicago.—Alton Telegraph.

Mrs. O'Leary, the owner of the cow which caused the $190,000,000 fire in Chicago in 1871, is dead. In the matter of fame the youth who fired the Ephesian dome isn't in it as compared with Mrs. O'Leary.—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

Chicago bears no grudge against the late Mrs. O'Leary. If it hadn't been for Mrs. O'Leary and her celebrated cow, the conflagration which was the making as well as the destruction of Chicago might never have occurred.—Kansas City Journal.

Mrs. O'Leary, owner of the fractious cow whose kick cost Chicago $190,000,000 one autumn night in 1871, is dead. Chicago papers claim that efficient police work has caused half the criminals to leave the city. Unless she is careful Chicago will get below the million limit in population.—Louisville Commercial.

The Boston Globe has advanced the strongest of all arguments in favor of closing the barber shops on Sunday. It is that it lets the people of St. Louis know when Sunday comes.—Chicago Times-Herald.

The Chicago assessment rolls show a decrease of $1,000,000 in the South Town on realty and $2,000,000 on personal property. If this sort of thing keeps on, Chicago will only be a whistling station on the railroads.—Springfield (Ill.) Journal.

According to the Boston Journal, 112,795 fewer baths were taken in the public bathhouses of Boston this year than in the same length of time last summer. We draw the attention of Herr Max Nordau to this important and significant fact.—New York Tribune.

ADAMS.

A Most Successful Lawn Fete.

The weather was most favorable last evening for the first night of St. Charles fete. The attendance was exceedingly large and everbody was surprised at the magnitude of the affair. It was expected that under the management of Rev. Fr. Moran it would be more than ordinarily well arranged, but that it would be such a fine affair as it was proven, was beyond the expectation of all. In the first place the grounds are far superior to any others in town for such an occasion, and the artistic decorations and bright lights gave them greater value. Many tables were set on the west side of Fr. Moran's residence, and at them were served ice cream and other refreshments. Directly in front a large platform for dancing stood in the center, and just above it was a nicely trimmed booth in which sat Neary's orchestra, who furnished first-class music for the dance. Just above this was a place laid aside for the band, (Doll's), which paraded the main streets, and after reaching the grounds rendered melodious strains to the pleasure of the gathering. All around the grounds, settees were placed at regular intervals and those who tired of the promenade and dance were thereby made comfortable. Many North Adams people were present and a special electric car was provided for them at 12.15 o'clock. This afternoon the fete will again be in progress. Clapp's band will furnish music. From 5 to 7 o'clock a regular dinner will be served at 15 cents a plate. Dancing will be in order again tonight and Samuel Starkweater of Williamstown, who gave good satisfaction as prompter last night, will officiate once more in that capacity. Children with parents or with elder persons, will be admitted free of charge. Tonight the articles upon which books are out, will be awarded.

Lively Competition.

An unusual scene occurred at the post-office square last evening, when two street venders, having procured license, opened shop and tried each to outvie the other. They were the electric belt agents and "Hankerchief Jack," who strikes town regularly once a year to dispose of his stock in trade. The former had a graphophone and the latter his voice, slight of-hand tricks and ready wit. He had gotten well along when the other man opened and then the fun began. Both held good crowds and sold well. After the handkerchief man finished, a medicine man began and tried to prove his article superior to the magnetic girdle. On the opposite side of the street was a vender of song sheets and when all were doing their act Doll's band passed by parading to St. Charles' lawn fete. It seems that all kinds of street men are striking for Adams and vicinity as the news of her boom is aired.

To Remove the Freight House.

Patrick J. Barrett has contracted with the Boston & Albany railroad people to move the freight house to the other side of the tracks. He has loosened the underpinning of the building and will roll the structure to its new stand Monday.

Magnan Appeals.

In the district court this morning Magnan the druggist was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine of $50. He appealed and P. J. Barrett became his surety.

Last evening a large party drove to Cheshire to attend the performance of the Berkshire Hills minstrels. Four teams were provided by Liveryman Arthur J. Follett.

Clovis Bolter, snare drummer in Lafayette band and Brothers' orchestra, has received the offer of a first-class position as drummer in a theatrical band and orchestra. He has not yet made up his mind whether or not he will accept.

Liveryman Arthur J. Follett has improved his stables considerably and has put in eight new stalls, in which he will board horses employed at the Berkshire mill excavation.

A private party held a gathering at Odd Fellows' hall last evening.

Tomorrow the regular monthly meeting of Division 3 A. O. H., will be held.

Mrs. Helen G. Rice of Boston, state superintendent of the Women's Christian Temperance union, will deliver an address in the Congregational church parlors Monday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock.

It is said that the Berkshire Hills minstrels of Cheshire will produce their entertainment at the opera house soon.

E. A. Thatcher is drawing M. J. Holden & Son's office building to Spring street, where they are to locate their sheds.

There will be no confessions heard at St. Charles' church this evening, on account of the lawn fete.

Mrs. Thomas of Renfrew is dangerously ill at her home in Renfrew.

A play is being arranged for presentation at the old church of Notre Dame parish soon.

In regard to forming an Adams hose team for the Pittsfield muster, some of the local sports and sprinters will probably do something. Keyron Doyle has been looking around, and will probably make a start.

The Stanley Juniors of Pittsfield and the Adams high schools are to play ball on the Renfrew grounds at 3.30 o'clock his afternoon.

Dr. Woodbridge was called and set the toe in place.

Arthur was formerly a Blackinton boy, but has followed the sea for a vocation for many years, he was at one time captain of a coasting schooner, but now is first mate of J. J. Astor's magnificent steam yacht "Nourmahal."

Dr. Galvin of this place will care for the patients of Dr. Potter of North Pownal. While the latter is taking his vacation Dr. Galvin will keep his office open in Blackinton.

POWNAL.

Another narrow escape at the Dunn crossing; this time at the one nearest Pownal. A carriage containing some city people from Williamstown was waiting at this crossing for a freight, and after it passed drove on to the track, just at this moment an express train came around the curve, and as the coachman said "I backed by horses off the track just in the nick of time." Besides the coachman there were three little children and their nurse in the carriage. This goes to show that the new road is an absolute necessity.

There is quite a ripple of merriment going around at the expense of Daniel T. Bates and Prof. Arnold of Pittsfield. Prof. Arnold rode his wheel up the other day and stopped while in town at Mr. Bate's house. While he was away one morning Mr. Bates, who has the bicycle fever like two-thirds of humanity, took the wheel out to see if he couldn't ride. He did fairly well, at first, but "pride goeth before a fall" and the result was a broken handle-bar. He took the bar to our local repairer Samuel Wright who soldered it up for him. Prof. Arnold took his wheel for a ride the next day and as he is quite a heavy man and solder not being as strong as steel the consequences were, bicycle broken again and Prof. Arnold on the ground. Prof. Arnold then takes Mr. Bates' horse and carriage and goes for a drive and not being an expert horseman has an accident and breaks the shafts. There is talk of a law suit, Mr. Bates claiming that Prof. Arnold smashed his carriage maliciously to even up the damage to the wheel and Prof. Arnold talks of suing Mr. Bates for breaking his wheel and for the injuries to himself from the fall. It is probable however that mutual friends will prevail on them to settle the matter.

HORSES AND HORSEMEN.

Prima Donna, 2.09¼, is in training at the trotting gait this season and can go fast that way.

Fred S. Moody, the 2-year-old brother to Muta Wilkes, 2:11, has already gone a half in his work in 1:03.

The popularity of road racing and road driving is on the increase, the enormous operations of the bicycle manufacturers to the contrary notwithstanding.

Goers has four young Prince Regents in his string—Zenobia, Fitz Royal Black Regent and Celtic. They should all beat 2:18, one of them having already done so.

Mr. P. Lorillard has made six nominations for the English Two Thousand Guineas stake, nine for the One Thousand Guineas and one, Da'yota II, for the Derby.

It is said that George Gould was blackballed when his name was voted on for membership in the Paris Polo club, despite the alleged influence of all the Castellanes.

AT LAUREL BEACH.

A LIVELY HAILSTORM THAT MADE THINGS JINGLE.

The Pleasure of Camp Life and its Poetical Effects.—Cottage Building.—An Old Epitaph.

LAUREL BEACH, July 23, 1895

Editor Transcript:—We are just recovering from the effects of the terrible hail storm we had a week ago Saturday. Did you have such a time there, I wonder? It started with a thunder shower, and for a while the lightning was quite vivid. Then, as we sat around the table trying to read, we heard a sound on the roof that gave us the impression that we had made some grave mistake in the date and that the Fourth had just come. Slowly recovering our senses, we realized that it was not firecrackers, but hail, that we heard, and there was a general rush for the stairway. Once upstairs, the noise was deafening and it was only by shouting that we could make ourselves heard. The first hailstones that came were the largest, many of them being the size of a small marble. This pelting continued with scarcely any intermission for about an hour. After it stopped the part of the piazza roof under the gutter was covered two inches deep, and we went out in the yard and scooped up the hailstones by handfuls. This was just after dinner, but the sleet remained in patches all the afternoon.

We are still enjoying ourselves as much as ever. A week ago last Thursday we were very much pleased by the arrival of some of our North Adams friends who came to spend a week in the cottage next to ours. The party consisted of Mrs. Albert Bartlett and mother, Mrs. Phillips, W. A. Phillips and wife and Mrs. Bartlett's two children, Dwight and Ruth. For a week we were a merry set, and many a pleasant evening we spent on the water in fishing. This party, however, went last Friday, and I need not say that we have missed them.

Scarcely a day passes in which we do not have visitors, most of whom are entire strangers to us. Yet one and all seem to be delighted with the place. Two weeks ago Sunday Mr. Jones and O. H. Stickney, who owns one of the cottages here, drove over from their homes in Bratleboro, accompanied by Mr. Emmerson, also of that town. Among our other visitors are David Ballou of Wilmington, Mr. Sherman and daughter of Williamsville, Mr. Roberts of Brattleboro and G. W. McKnight of Shelburne Falls.

Our own party now numbers six, as Mrs. J. E. Morgan of Adams joined us two weeks ago. Sunday J. E. Morgan, Clarence Sheldon of Zylonite and Fred Wheelock of Adams came up on their wheels. They left Zylonite at 5 o'clock and rode to Hartwellville before breakfast. Mr. Sheldon was obliged to go back Monday morning, but the others stayed until Tuesday afternoon, when they returned by way of Readsboro City.

I believe I spoke in my last letter of the little cemetery across the lake. Sunday we went to see it. It would seem that it is quite old, for many of the stones are merely flat slabs from the neighboring fields. The oldest date is 1802, although there is one stone bearing the name of David Tottingham, died, 1834, aged 76 years. The inscription found here it perhaps more worthy of note than any other in the place. It reads:—

"How strange, O God who reigns on high,
That I should come so far to die,
And leave the land where I was bred,
To lay my bones with strangers dead.
And yet I hope when I shall rise,
To dwell with thee above the skies."

Although there are but few here at present, it is not so quiet as you might imagine, for all day long may be heard the ring of the hammers driving together the boards of the Ashman cottage, as it is already called. It is progressing finely and will, I think, be ready for occupancy by the first of August, when there will probably be over thirty campers on the grounds.

Meanwhile, to pass away the hours, I am making a collection of the poetry which is to be heard at all times of the day. It bears a resemblance to both Longfellow and Mother Goose (perhaps the latter more than the former,) and the album promises to be a very interesting one to say the least. Genius seems to burn here with a brightness all its own. Probably you are anxious now for some specimens, but if I refrain from sending any it is solely on your account, as I am certain you never would never survive.

THE STAMP OF STYLE.

The empire, or colonial, gowns, as they are now called, appear among special French and American creations for mid-summer wear.

Berthas and fichus of silk muslin, with plaited frills of the same, one falling partly over the other, are always useful in imparting a new dainty effect to a gown.

Some new and very pretty "picture" dresses for summer luncheons, garden parties, picnics and similar occasions are made in colonial, chatelaine and other unique styles.

Stylish costumes of pale buff colored linen duck, with small dots of black scattered over its surface, are made with full untrimmed skirts and Eton jackets, with fronts slightly tabbed.

Rich and stately redingote costumes, with braided cloth or plain velvet tablier fronts are heralded by returned importers as among the fashionable features of the autumn and winter seasons.

Mohair will prevail as a very popular dress material for fall and autumn house gowns, and coat and skirt costumes for the street. This material will appear in heavier weights and with a very high luster, and of almost a corded weave.

Large sailor and Marie Antoinette collars of velvet will appear upon next season's gowns and costumes exactly in the same style as those of lace, lawn and grass linen are now worn. They will be silk lined and interlined with crinoline.—New York Post.

GLEANINGS.

The average Japanese god is 60 feet high.

A French-Canadian editor has had to pay a fine of $200 for calling a brother editor a Methodist.

Switzerland grants one divorce to every 22 marriages as compared with one to 132 in Holland and one to 577 in England.

One billion silver dollars stacked up one on top of the other would make a column 1,404 miles high. Figure on it and see.

Black fabrics are never used to cover coffins in Russia. For a child or young person a pink shade of cloth is the custom. Crimson is the style for the coffin of a married woman and brown for widows.

By a new French law any one found guilty of revealing the contents of a private letter will be punished with imprisonment for six days, the term to be increased where the opening of the letter is not accidental, even if the contents have not been divulged. The law is aimed against the practices of the concierges.

The Japanese Fair

Yesterday was our opening day and our store was crowded to suffocation. We hope those who turned away on account of the crowd will favor us with a visit this afternoon and evening.

Well! Well! Aren't They Cheap!

Was the surprised expression often overheard. We are used to that. It is our experience everywhere.

The Reason

Is because we have so many stores, we are able to make very large importations, in fact we buy and sell more goods than any one concern. We can sell cheaper in North Adams than we can in New York, for our New York store cost $15,000 rent, besides a large sum for running expenses, while here all our expenses are comparatively small.

These

Luxurious and Artistic Goods

Usually cost the customer an extravagant price. Don't stay away from the Japanese Fair for this reason. You will be surprised equally by the beauty and quaintness of our goods and by Our Prices.

PREFERRED TO TRAMP.

Daniel Goodwin Made Very Poor Use of a Snug Fortune.

Now Compelled to End His Days In an Asylum.

Jails and Almshouses Were Always His Favorite Abiding Places.

SALEM, Mass., July 27.—Daniel Goodwin, a native of Peabody and one of the most noted tramps in this country, and who has probably been confined in more jails and almshouses during the past 10 years than any other living man, was yesterday sent to the Danvers insane asylum, being been adjudged insane.

Goodwin is worth a fortune variously estimated at between $20,000 and $30,000. Father died about 10 years ago and left him $10,000, and since the day that property came into his possession he has not worked. He prefers, he states, to go tramping instead of enjoying the fortune which has been left him.

He manages to enjoy life on first principles, he declared, when remonstrated with by friends. "When the money is all gone I will go to work, and not before. I like to tramp, and the company I find on the road and in the jails and almshouses pleases me."

Goodwin has been in every state in the union several times, and has visited nearly every place, city and town during

His Ten Years of Tramp Life.

A statement to this effect is borne out by letters and telegrams to his guardian, Edward Spaulding, asking for remittances of his fortune.

Columns have been written in the newspapers relative to the actions of Goodwin, mostly after he came into the money left by his father he began to drink, and would recklessly light cigars with bills, go into saloons and smash glassware and mirrors. When remonstrated with, he would ask the damage, and immediately pay for it. At times he carried about him $1000 in money.

Friends and relatives after a time asked that a guardian be appointed, and Levi Spalding of Peabody was chosen, but at the decease of the latter, Willard Spaulding has been the guardian of Goodwin. Goodwin is now about 50 years of age, and Completely Broken Down In Health.

For a long time nothing had been heard from him until he made his appearance in Peabody about a month ago, and secured a pass with which he wanted to go to Philadelphia and have an operation performed on his eyes. Whether or not he visited the hospital is not known, but the operation was not performed, and on Thursday Goodwin returned, only to be arrested in Peabody and sent to the asylum.

It is known among the tramps from one end of the country to the other as "Good."

Goodwin has relatives in Lynn, who will become possessed of what there is left of his fortune when he ends his existence.

Not a Case of Murder.

BOSTON, July 27.—The body of Alberta Stewart, a 14-year-old schoolgirl, who has been missing from her home since Tuesday night, was found floating in the Charles river yesterday. At first appearance it looked as if the child had been subjected to a criminal assault and afterward thrown into the water, and stories of murder were rife. After a searching investigation, however, the police regard it as a case of suicide, resulting from remorseness at a flogging given the girl by her sister, with whom she lived, for running away from home last Sunday.

To Fight Tuberculosis.

BOSTON, July 27.—The convention of representatives of various state cattle commissioners and boards of health effected a permanent organization yesterday, to be known as the tuberculosis commission of New England. It was resolved that the boards of cattle commissioners of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts and Connecticut agree that no cattle shall be allowed entrance into any of the respective states without quarantine restrictions unless a certificate has been furnished by the party desiring to ship such cattle.

Stabbed Himself Fatally.

MERIDEN, Conn., July 27.—Frederick Gauthier, aged 30, quarreled with his wife, and to escape her husband's abuse the woman went to her mother's house. The man followed and made an attempt to stab his wife. Mrs. Gauthier's mother prevented this, and Barnaby Brunnelle and Gustavus Brunnelle came into the affray. Barnaby sustained three cuts, none of which will prove serious. Gustavus was also slightly cut. Gauthier then stabbed himself directly over the heart. Physicians pronounce the wound as fatal.

Steamer Kept Right On.

VINEYARD HAVEN, Mass., July 27.—Schooner Addie G. Bryant, Captain Clay, from Philadelphia, with coal for Rockland, was sunk in collision with a Reading (Pa.) coal steamer off Pollock Rip. The captain and crew succeeded in making the lightship.

Citizens Endorse Investigation.

HAVERHILL, Mass., July 27. — Excitement runs high here over the proposed investigation into the management of the almshouse, and the step is generally applauded by the citizens. Mayor Jewett and Alderman Allen say that the published stories do not begin to give a correct account of some of the transactions there. Witnesses have come forward and will testify at the investigation to acts of cruelty to inmates, putrid food, the eating of which made numbers of inmates sick, and to instances in which inmates were confined to solitary cells, with bread and water, for trival offenses.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 27.—Thomas E. Burns, who was arrested for the alleged swindling of firms in Boston and Cambridge, was yesterday held for the grand jury in $1500 bonds, and, not being able to furnish bondsmen, was committed to the house of correction. Mr. McClellan for alleged fraud perpetrated by the Pennock Electric company of which McClellan was the head in selling stock. A Sea Serpent Story.

SALEM, Mass., July 27. — When the steamer John Endicott arrived at Salem, yesterday, attached to its bow was a monster of ferocious appearance. With "feelers" or legs 13 feet long, it clung to the craft until near the wharf, when it released its hold and sunk in the harbor. The devil fish was struck by the steamer while off Marblehead harbor, and clung to the bow on the trip in.

The Massachusetts general hospital was made the residuary legatee, and has been paid $363,048.

Hudson Has a Hugger.

HUDSON, Mass., July 27.—On several nights of late, women and girls have been assaulted by some unknown man here. He is commonly referred to as "Jack, the Hugger," in consequence of the form which the assault commonly takes. All efforts for his capture have so far proven futile. He is lively with his legs, and has outrun some of the best sprinters in town.

Tried to Get Away.

LOWELL, Mass., July 27.—W. C. Lyons, who was indicted in Augusta, Me., for uttering a forged check, and who jumped his bail and came to this city, was arrested by Sheriff Cornish of Augusta yesterday afternoon.
